2. Programme description

The Master of Arts programme in Language and Linguistics is intended for students with either a Swedish or international Bachelor’s degree who are interested in language and linguistics. The objective of the programme is to increase the student’s knowledge and understanding of language in its broad sense and theoretical understanding of linguistic issues. It also aims to develop the student’s language proficiency in and knowledge of the specific language in which he/she has chosen to specialise. The student can choose from several different specialisations (see above). The programme consists of compulsory courses common to all specialisations, compulsory courses for each specialisation and elective courses. Elective courses are chosen in consultation with the programme coordinator. The languages of instruction are English and other languages according to the area of specialisation. The final degree project consists of a thesis on language or linguistics with an in-depth study in one of the areas of specialisation. The programme can constitute a preparatory course for further academic studies or for a future career in an area related to languages.

Students are also offered the opportunity to complete a Master's degree (60 credits) within the programme. Sections 3–6 below refer to the Master’s degree comprising 120 credits, and sections 7–10 to the Master’s degree comprising 60 credits.

The programme starts in the autumn semester every year. Information about the specialisations currently on offer is available on the department’s website.

FOR A MASTER OF ARTS (120 CREDITS)

3. Learning outcomes

For a Master of Arts (120 credits) in Language and Linguistics the student shall

- demonstrate knowledge and understanding of language and linguistics, including both broad knowledge of linguistics and a considerable degree of specialised knowledge in the selected area of specialisation
- demonstrate deep insights into current linguistic research and development work
• demonstrate an advanced ability to apply linguistics methodology
• demonstrate the ability to critically and systematically integrate knowledge and analyse, assess and deal with complex phenomena, issues and situations, even with limited information
• demonstrate the ability to identify and formulate research issues critically, autonomously and creatively as well as to plan and, using appropriate methods, undertake advanced tasks within predetermined time frames and so contribute to the formation of knowledge, as well as the ability to evaluate this work
• demonstrate the ability in speech and writing both nationally and internationally to report clearly and discuss his or her development work and research, as well as the knowledge and arguments on which they are based in dialogue with different audiences, using the language of the selected specialisation
• demonstrate the knowledge and skills required for participation in research and development work or autonomous employment in a qualified capacity concerned with language, the teaching of language and international relations
• demonstrate the knowledge and skills required to take responsibility for, evaluate and develop activities in which language competence is an integral part
• demonstrate the ability to make assessments in linguistics informed by relevant disciplinary, societal and ethical issues and also to demonstrate awareness of ethical aspects of research and developmental work
• demonstrate the ability to assess, compile and evaluate information from various sources, within the chosen area of specialisation for the degree project
• demonstrate knowledge of the place of linguistics in the context of other sciences
• demonstrate insight into the possibilities and limitations of research, its role in society and the responsibility of the individual for how it is used
• demonstrate the ability to identify the personal need for further knowledge and take responsibility for his or her ongoing learning.

4. Information about the courses
