N.B. For most of the texts you can use any edition you like, but we strongly advise printed rather than electronic editions. For The Tempest you should use an edition of The Arden Shakespeare because it contains so many comments and explanations that it makes the reading infinitely easier. The poems are all available to download from Project Gutenberg, but we recommend that you acquire The Norton Anthology of English Literature, preferably in the old two-volume edition (available via Amazon or other used-book sites at very reasonable prices and a lifetime investment for anyone into English literature!) or otherwise in the new A—F edition, in which case you would need volumes C (The Restoration and the Eighteenth Century), D (The Romantic Period) and E (The Victorian Age). Apart from the poetry listed here, the Norton Anthology also contains the whole text of The Way of the World, Pope's 'Essay on Criticism', Book IV of Gulliver's Travels and the whole of The Waste Land – plus excellent period surveys and author introductions.
